

THE DAILY BULLETIN.

SATURDAY EVE., SEPT. 27. 1884.

The New York World says Ben Butler is like butter; the more he spreads himself the thinner he becomes.

EVER and anon the dead cold night air is split by a shrill and piercing noise. It is the Republican party whistling to keep up its courage.

"If Mr. Blaine is nominated, we shall be obliged to defend him again charges which we know to be true."—U. S. Senator Edmunds, Republican.

POWELL CLAYTON, of Arkansas, one of the well-known officials in the days of reconstruction, is the chaperon of Logan in Ohio. S. B. Elkins is managing the Western tour of the Blaine circus.

The Bracken Chronicle says: "Col. Wadsworth's recent visit to this place did not seem to inspire him the confidence that his many personal Democratic friends will support him for Congress. Col. W. is suffering from the fact that he's caught in bad company and in a bad-winkled too long; they have had insult heaped upon injury and they propose to resent it at this time. Old Bracken wants to poll her old-time Democratic majority of one thousand. It matters not who is the candidate of the Republican party; it is not the man, the candidate's a figure-head. Democrats, accept this time what the Republicans always have done, viz: Stick to their man. We have a good man, for unimpeachable character, good business ability, will make a faithful public servant, in the person of Capt. Frank Powers, and we will elect him by a majority of from twenty-five thousand to five thousand."

Hard Times.

The campaign cry of the Republicans in 1880 was that if Hancock would be elected the manufacturers and workshops would close and the working people would be reduced to a condition of starvation.

Hancock was defeated and the Republican party kept in power. What is the result? Why, the mills are idle or running on reduced time, more than half of all the furnaces in the country are shut down, wages have been reduced to starvation rates and the very pauper labor of Europe to which the Republicans hypocritically pretend to be hostile is imported under contract to drive out the higher priced American labor.

In the face of these facts political mountebanks like James G. Blaine have the audacity to declare that the Republican party with its policy of high tariff taxation, must be kept in power as the only hope of the workingman! Could brazen impudence further go?

Blaine and his supporters go upon the presumption that the people love to be cheated. Their motto is: "Vive la Humbug!" They have persuaded themselves that the campaign cry with which they deluded the credulous in 1880, can be repeated with the same effect.

Probably they will be undeeived in November. It was their fault that the people were deceived four years ago; if their deception is again successful it will be the fault of the people who have been taught by experience to know and understand them.

The hard times which now afflict the country have been caused by Republican misrule. The Republican party has been and is in power at Washington. Its policy has been to withdraw from the pockets of the people annually more than a hundred millions of dollars in taxes in excess of that requirements of the Government, until now some four hundred and fifty million of dollars of the people's hard earned money lie idle in the United States Treasury. The withdrawal of this immense sum from the channels of trade and business has crushed the life out of the industries of the country. And thus it is that the Republican party has brought these stringent times upon the country.

Blaine in the Agones.

Blaine wanted more money for his part in the Little Rock and Fort Smith railroad swindle. Fisher thought Blaine had had his full share.

BLAINE TO FISHER.

"If you knew the agonies I have suffered in this matter the past six months you would pity me, I am sure, and make great efforts to relieve me." "Burn this letter."

FISHER TO BLAINE.

"I have placed you in positions whereby you have received large sums of money without one dollar of expense to you, and you ought not to forget the act on my part."

Baldized County.

Mr. Oliver Domestic.

Notwithstanding many Republicans boast of the name of Wadsworth, the fact cannot be denied that he was not the choice of Robertson, but got the instructions because some of the bosses feared his power in future.

FERRY INTERVIEWED.

What the French Premier Says About the Situation in China.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—M. Jules Ferry has been interviewed. He said: "I regard the affair of F. Chow as a test of our relations with our French Navy. Admiral Courbet had a formidable force before him, no junks, but first-class iron-clads, mounted with heavy guns. Admiral Courbet has covered himself with glory and won the admiration of the world. Tongking is well worth all the sacrifices and more. It is a rich and fertile land; it is a new Indo-China, a colonial empire, that France has in her hand, and that remains to us. France is the only nation which can afford to do this. The cost of the war is about $100,000,000. The expenses of the expedition to Tonquin are about to send cargoes of cotton goods, timber, and foodstuffs to the Orient. You see the future is to the countries which seek their expansion abroad."

"The colonial policy which has been so much discussed and about which so many articles have been written, the policy of the future for a country like France? A nation of our own should not remain confined in its old frontiers. It requires new air and more room. Look at Germany. The people did not seem to understand some of our fellow countrymen who are opposed to any idea of that kind. They should understand that the future of the country is concerned. I hope that they do not believe that the world is laid aside for us. France does not share the apprehensions entertained on its account. Germany has not the ambition with which she is credited in regard to this matter. I think that Germany is more interested in the creation of colonies than with anything else. Our relations with her are excellent. The two Governments are on the best possible terms."

"As regards the address of the Extreme Left, what would you have to make to it? I do not know whether it is the address of the Left, or of the Right, or of the Center. I do not know who signed the address. 'Mais qui roulez vous?' It is as difficult for a President of the Republic as for a President of the Chamber to please everybody. There are as scrupulous as these gentlemen, but it really cannot provoke the Chambers when there is no reason for doing so. China has not declared war against us, they should not be compelled to do so. They may make their minds easy on that score. We have still money and enough of it to carry things through, as we have settled to do. So far as the credits voted by the Chamber before the war are concerned, why should we provoke Parliament?"

"The country wants and is loudly clamoring for rest. A precipitate conciliation of the Chinese could be repulsive to us, or even encourage another to sweep to the center and it became necessary to conciliate Paris. I should not hesitate a moment. Do not speak of my majority. Whenever a government does its duty and labors for the welfare of its people it is a majority." He then concluded by calling an interview which he intended to return to St. Die next week. "You see," he added, "there is nothing serious in the situation."

CLEVELAND FIRE-BUCS

Make a Desperate Effort to Destroy the City.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27.—Investigation discloses an organized and most villainous attempt to burn the business centre of this city. Last night the Fire Department were first called to a slight blaze at the Excelsior Clothiers' room in the Wilshire Block. While the flames were working here, a fire started in the closet of another part of the building and another in a passage way in an adjacent power block. Both fires were extinguished, when it was discovered a fire had been set to the First National Bank Building on Superior Avenue, to prevent the immediate work of Myron O. Oberlin & Co. near the visited. The vigilance of a night watchman alone prevented another disastrous conflagration. Rumors of other fires were heard all over the city. Business men are intensely excited, and should any of the fires have caught hold, the destruction of the back yards of some of the citizens will be numerous. Property losses reported are trifling.

Probably they will be undeeived in November. It was their fault that the people were deceived four years ago; if their deception is again successful it will be the fault of the people who have been taught by experience to know and understand them.

The hard times which now afflict the country have been caused by Republican misrule. The Republican party has been and is in power at Washington. AN INTERCEPTED TELEGRAM.

Led to the Attempted White Murder and Suicide at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27.—(2 p.m.)—Gardner, the Police Court clerk, who shot his wife and himself Thursday, is still living. No effort has been made to extract the bullet from the brain as the physicians are of the opinion that the removal of the bullet would be fatal to the woman. The woman's body was checked after her death and buried in Huron Hospital, and she may recover. It transpires that Gardner intercepted telegram to his wife from Alexander Lewis, the handsomest sporting man of whom he was jealous.

"Write me at once 800 State street, Chicago. Will leave here Saturday or Sunday."

He did leave, and arrived here the day preceding yesterday, and sent his misses to the hospital to have the bullet removed.

A slip of paper found on Gardner instructed his brother to take care of everything and bore also the name of Gardner's first wife, who left him on account of his fast life, and who left him a restaurant in Monroe, Michigan.

BLOWING UP THE SOULS

Their Poor Bodies Flying Through the Air in All Directions.

Story of the Wreck of the Averyon, and the Extraordinary Conduct of the Passengers with the Natives—A Narrow Escape.

New York, Sept. 27.—The particulars of the loss of the French transport Averyon, which went ashore on Cape Guardafui, in the Red Sea, on August 10 last, has reached this port by the arrival of the steamer Lord of the Isles, which vessel rescued and landed at Aden, Arabia, 304 men from the Transport.

At the time the Averyon ran ashore there were over 600 men and women aboard. There were all French soldiers returning from the Tonquin, many of whom were accompanied by their wives. A large number of the party were invalids. On the night she went ashore the atmosphere was very thick and her captain heard bells ringing on all sides.

There are two large hills at this point in the Red Sea, one of which forms Cape Guardafui, and the other is back of the cape. The hills are high and the ground is very marshy, and has been the scene of many wrecks within a few years.

The Averyon steamed into the marshy land until her keel was almost clear of the land. Her captain discovering that running could be dangerous, caused his officers to stand by him and when he informed all on board that there was no danger, and ordered them to retire. In the morning they found themselves surrounded by natives who are known as the Souls. There was hope of rescue, however, and when a steamer had been made to land, the natives flourished spear, spears, bludgeons and numerous other articles of warfare, and one man, who seemed to be the leader of the tribe, came alongside the steamer and informed her captain that $6,000 would be paid him if he would bring the vessel to land. In the meantime forty-five marines, the only armed force on board, were busy in keeping the natives from climbing up the sides and on deck. The captain having a small boat, sent it ashore and took it into it ashore with about ten men and had a life line thrown to the vessel, so that the whole company could go ashore with safety. The demand of the Souls put a stop to this scheme, as there was but $600 in money on board.

Having after much difficulty, it was agreed the first officer with seven men could go ashore. A small boat was launched and the men had nearly reached the shore when the boat capsized in the surf and one man was drowned. The natives then took the gunpowder and also the powder, and finally a line was thrown out and securely attached on board the transport. The natives again became demonstrative and threatened to cut the lines with their axes if any person attempted to leave.

After much maneuvering for several hours, the natives endeavoring to board the steamer and badly frightening the women until the German steamer Massilia left in sight. She had only accommodations for water, the Transport being empty, and the women and invalids and many of the men who won their rescue by drawing lots were taken on board.

After the Massilia left another attempt to land was made by those on board, but the natives still threatened. They remained until night and until the next day at 3 p.m., the people on shore and on the Averyon were kept in a state of terror by the howling natives.

When the steamer Lord of Isles appeared and took on board all the men and as many natives as possible. The natives were nearly frantic with rage and the Lieutenant and ten men on shore were obliged to fight their way through to get to the life line. The Lieutenant and his men fought their way to the ship on board, the natives in the other and seized the rope and attempted to haul him back.

The tug of war was long and desperate and before the officer was landed on board he had all the natives off the ship.

Before the captain left the Averyon he set fire to her, and as the rescuing steamer sailed away, those on board could see the black bodies of the Souls dashing through the flames.

"They looked like very devounants" said Officer Evans, of the Lord of Isle, "so intent were they on securing what they could from the ship that they did not seem to mind the flames." After the steamer had passed out of sight we heard a terrific explosion and a timber and riggers flying about in the air. Poor fellows! They forgot 600 pounds of powder which was stowed on the grounded vessel, and when the flames struck the explosive s a vast number of their souls went to winged home."

Piegans and Crows Clash.

PORT KNOX, M. T., Sept. 27.—A party of Crow and Piegans came together a day or two ago near Judith Gap, and the consequence was a severe fight. The Indians, however, lost another left for the camp on the field, and the Piegans bit the dust. Both bands were on horses stealing expeditions when they met and had the fight. There have been more cattle killed and horses run off in Montana than ever before. The Indians were in Indian affairs in the Mussel Shell country is worse than it was years ago.

A Fugitive Case.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 27.—Some time ago Alexander Wingate, of Kentucky, while a passenger on an Ohio & Mississippi train near Vincennes, was shot and killed by a fel low named James Hayes, who was serving time for delinquent service. Wingate wiped the railroad company and was awarded $5,000 damages by Master Commissioner Fishback, of the Federal Court. The Receiver of the Ohio & Mississippi appealed from the Commissioners and the case is now on trial before Judge Woods.

Depredating Miners.

SHAWNEE, Okla.—White miners are again making raids on the stock of farmers for food. Scarcely a night passes but cattle are butchered in the fields and the carcasses carried away. Prominent miners are unable to do anything to stop these depredations. A large number of old miners are leaving the valley, while the syndicate is increasing its forces from foreign labor and negroes.

Getting Ready for Cholera.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Dr. Alfred Carroll, of the State Board of Health, says:

"I intend getting everything ready for the reception of cholera during the coming winter. Cholera will strike here next winter and you can't prevent it. We shall endeavor to treat it as it should be, by having our houses in order."

Dr. Carroll expects to make an official visit to all parts of the State and rigidly enforce the sanitary laws.
